A shared passion

Professor involves students in unique research opportunities

BY REBEKAH WRIGHT '10

One of SBU's newest biology faculty members has a passion for practical research and is sharing that passion with his students, allowing them the opportunity to join him in unique undergraduate research opportunities. This research experience makes SBU biology students some of the most qualified candidates for graduate schools and is also helping them discover their own God-given callings.

Dr. Tao Wei's extensive ongoing research in microbiology currently focuses primarily on studying biofilms, which are colonies of bacteria that form on biotic or abiotic surfaces, can resist traditional antibiotic treatments and cause chronic infections in the immunocompromised.

Wei says this research is important because the public needs to know about possible side effects of antibiotics involving biofilms. So far, Wei's research has discovered that some antibiotics can actually increase biofilm formation. Thus, when biofilms form to cause an infection, some antibiotics may actually contribute to making the problem chronic.

Dr. Wei's extensive research and enthusiasm about biology is impressive, but what matters more is his desire to see his students learn and succeed. At the start of the 2013-14 academic year, Dr. Wei was selected as the Faculty Newcomer of the Year. In his nomination, one student said of Dr. Wei, "I like that he has us think critically about experiments so that we come to conclusions with our own thoughts, rather than spoon feeding us the answers; this helps us develop thinking skills while learning and understanding the information.”

“I love the lab work and the opportunity to apply what I’m learning and think creatively.”

Wei has recruited several students to help with his ongoing research, giving them the unique opportunity to participate in scientific research at the undergraduate level. Kara Phipps, senior biology major, has long dreamed of pursuing a career in scientific research. By working as a lab assistant for Dr. Wei, she has had the opportunity to play a critical role in this research.

Last summer she participated in SBU’s Undergraduate Research Experience (SURE) program, which enables SBU students to experience significant research projects with SBU faculty. This led to Kara’s senior capstone project for the Dutile Honors Program. With Wei, she has co-authored a recent journal article and received invaluable experience with lab work and presenting research findings. After graduation in May, Kara plans to go on to graduate school and says that this lab experience she is receiving at SBU is making her dreams possible.

The opportunity to participate in undergraduate research with Dr. Wei has been so profound for Kara that she recruited several more students to help, including Annie Wolfe, ’13, and Ellie Fjellman, junior.

“I love getting to think for myself, design experiments and discover answers,” Annie said.

Ellie just recently switched to a biology major and wanted to have hands-on experience.

“I figured this would be the best way to transition to a new major and they need younger students to ensure the research keeps moving forward,” she said.

The students explained that in a typical week they read journal articles and then meet with Dr. Wei to discuss what they read. Based on that discussion, they develop research questions, design experiments and spend their weekends in the lab conducting experiments and compiling results.

“I’m learning how to manage and organize an entire research process,” Kara said. “I love the lab work and the opportunity to apply what I’m learning and to think creatively.”

According to Wei, undergraduate research opportunities are a great asset for SBU and ensure our students are well-prepared and top candidates for graduate schools.

“I’ve met the most intelligent students at SBU since I came,” he said. “I really enjoy working with them, and I can’t do this without them.”

For Kara and other students, this is a dream come true.

“Some days, I wake up and realize how blessed I am to be working on things I love to do in a place I love,” she said. “I am so glad God opened doors for me to pursue undergraduate research at SBU!”

Questions

with Bob Glidwell

In each issue of SBULife magazine, we interview one of our staff members so you can meet the people who help make SBU a Christ-centered, caring academic community.

Staff and Faculty Life Beautiful awards are given annually to employees who exemplify a “life beautiful.” Bob Glidwell, director of physical plant, received the staff award, while Dana Steward, instructor of university studies and director of the University Success Center received the faculty award. Glidwell is featured in this issue.

How many years have you worked at SBU?

What positions have you held at SBU?

I started working here as the game room manager and bowling coach and then became the physical plant director, a position I have held for 28 years.

What does a typical day look like for you at SBU?

There are so many different facets to my job — which makes my job so much more enjoyable. Usually, I start the day by talking to the maintenance staff about what is happening around campus. From there, I handle items such as budgeting and overseeing building projects.

What is your community involvement?

I am involved mostly through my church, First Baptist Church of Bolivar. I am a trustee, have previously taught Sunday school and am a charter member of the church orchestra and play the clarinet.

What is SBU’s greatest asset?

The people. I have a really good rapport with all the staff. We truly have people who are dedicated.

PRESIDENT'S REPORT

2 0 1 3

Dear Alumni, Friends and Donors,

Is Christian higher education worth the price? Is the work I do for SBU worth it? After more than 17 years as president of SBU, and as I am getting older, I often ponder these kinds of questions.

A large percentage of my time is spent fundraising for projects, scholarships and to grow the endowment. A year ago January, I had spent a day in meetings in Jefferson City and that night I had driven to Kansas City for dinner with a young couple who had graduated during my early years at SBU. This young couple has become very successful in their careers and is giving back to their alma mater. My purpose that evening was to ask them to make a gift to the track and turf project. After dinner we talked for about two hours. By the time I left Kansas City to return to Jefferson City, it was very late and I had meetings the next day beginning at 7:30 a.m. at the Capitol. During the drive back, I was very tired and I began to think, "Why am I doing this? Is it worth it? How can I justify asking donors to give their hard-earned money to SBU for projects and to assist students with financial challenges?" By the time I arrived in Jefferson City during the early hours of the morning, I had reassured myself that it is indeed worth the effort and SBU and our students are a good investment for our donors.

I have often thought about that night and the deep reflections I had during the drive from Kansas City to Jefferson City. There have been two particular moments that have reassured me that my work and the investment by our donors is important.

During late summer, the turf and track project was completed. When I saw the enthusiasm of football players and the coaches when they first ran onto the new turf, and when the track coaches and some of the track athletes (who have been very successful without a track) saw the new track, I knew it was worth the effort and time I had invested. I knew our donors who had invested in this project would be pleased.

During this past December, I was made aware that one of our excellent students had not returned for her junior year. This student had been involved in numerous activities and was considered a leader in her dorm. I know how much she loves SBU and I was shocked to find that she was attending a state university. When I contacted her family, I found that they had had a serious family illness and she did not have the funds to return to SBU. Each fall I appeal to a group of donors to help fund deserving students who need financial assistance. I immediately knew she would be a student who deserved assistance from this fund. After I looked at her financial aid package and determined how much aid she would need to return to SBU, I called her to tell her that all of her costs to attend SBU would be taken care of. When I read the thank you letter she wrote, saw her in the cafeteria the first week of the spring semester, and heard her say how great it is to be back home at SBU, I realized once again that the energy and time I spend raising money for students is worth it. I can enthusiastically ask donors for contributions to assist students in receiving a quality Christian education at SBU.

What we do at SBU is important. It is important for current students and it is important for the future of our society because of what our SBU graduates will do in the years to come. I will continue to make these long, middle of the night trips as long as I can, and I will continue to seek contributions for students because they are worth it. Christian higher education is worth the price!

2013WomensXC: SBU Women's Cross Country team posing with MIAA Trophy after winning the 2013 MIAA Women's Cross Country Championship

SBU Women's Sports Find National Success During Fall Season

BY JEFF WESELOH '09, M.B.A. '13

The Southwest Baptist University women's sports had record setting seasons in the fall portion of competition during the 2013-14 school year. The women's soccer team made the NCAA National Tournament, women's cross country competed in the NCAA National Meet and two women's tennis players represented Southwest Baptist at the USTA/ITA Small College Nationals.

For the first time in school history the women's cross country team advanced to the NCAA National Championships, recording the most successful season in the program's history with a 12th-place finish. This marks the second-highest national finish of any women's team in the history of Southwest Baptist.

Prior to competing in the National Meet, SBU claimed its first-ever MIAA Championship for women's cross country. Numerous athletes were given both conference and regional awards with Ashley Wolkomir and Karissa Fisher earning both All-MIAA and All-Region honors. Briana Watson was also named All-Region to go along with All-MIAA Honorable Mention honors, while Elizabeth Luckel and Krenda McClure earned All-MIAA honors and Katherine Sitzes and Christina Owensby earned All-MIAA Honorable Mention honors.

The women's soccer team recorded the second most wins in school history while also making its second appearance in the NCAA National Tournament. SBU's season came to a close in the opening round of the NCAA Tournament with a hard fought 1-1 tie against No. 22-ranked Winona State, but the Bearcats fell in penalty kicks 5-4. The Bearcats received the automatic berth into the NCAA National Tournament by claiming their first ever MIAA Women's Soccer Tournament Championship Title.

The Bearcats once again received national recognition for their performance on the field. Ashley Creason led the way by earning All-American Honorable Mention honors to go along with First Team All-Region and Second Team All-MIAA honors. Karla Jamison and Kate Jamison both earned Second Team All-Region after earning Second Team All-MIAA honors. Camala James and Elin Hammar were both named Third Team All-MIAA, while Paige Hemphill and Ali Skogrand were both named All-MIAA Honorable Mention.

After advancing to the Elite 8 in last year's NCAA National Tournament, the women's tennis team continued its national success during the fall portion of the season. At the USTA/ITA Fall Central Regional Championships, the Bearcats swept both singles and doubles championships. Fanni Varga claimed her second straight USTA/ITA Central Regional Singles Title, with teammate Mehak Singh finishing as runner-up, while the doubles team of Varga and Christina Zentai claimed the USTA/ITA Central Regional Doubles Title. With the victories, Varga and Zentai advanced to the USTA/ITA Small College Nationals.

At Nationals, the doubles team of Varga and Zentai won the first round match, and eventually took home a fourth-place finish in the tournament. In singles action, Varga advanced to the championship match, but would finish as the runner-up, taking second in the nation.

With the national success Southwest Baptist is having this season, the Bearcats are poised to have the highest finish in the Learfield Sports Directors' Cup Standings in the history of the University.
